Salzburg Global: 2024 Program Overview

For more than 75 years, our programs have sought to bridge divides, advance movements for change, and create a positive impact on individuals, institutions, and systems. Whether at our home of Schloss Leopoldskron, through online programs, or in locations around the world, our mission is to challenge current and future leaders to shape a better world.

2024 Spotlight: Looking East

In 2024, across numerous special programs and events, Salzburg Global will "Look East." This year, we will explore the drivers and dynamics that will influence the next decades of global cooperation and potential conflict, all of which will be significantly shaped by developments in the Asia-Pacific.

In "Looking East," Salzburg Global's objective is to help understand and navigate the assumptions and expectations between cultures and societies in ways that open new possibilities for dialogue, confront entrenched narratives, and reconcile differences. In addition, we aim to support open dialogue and engagement between and among geopolitical competitors during an era of growing distrust and rising concern over potential conflicts.

Through a range of special programs and events, we will explore issues ranging from potential confrontations over sovereignty and self-determination to economic stability to the future of democracy, the rapid advance of AI and other new technologies, and the increasing seriousness of the climate crisis. Throughout our special programs and events, we will seek to address the assumptions and expectations of "East" and "West," as well as the tensions that underpin these assumptions, while looking to break down barriers and support new avenues for dialogue and cooperation.

A Schloss with a Mission

Built in 1744 by the Prince Archbishop of Salzburg, Schloss Leopoldskron has been inextricably linked to cycles of power, persecution, and renewal. Since our founding in 1947, Salzburg Global Seminar has been the sole caretaker and curator of the cultural heritage of Schloss Leopoldskron.

Today, we are prioritizing a commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion and achieving carbon neutrality in our unique 18th-century facilities. Schloss Leopoldskron is fully owned and operated by the Salzburg Global Seminar.

The full history of the Schloss can be found here.
